JAPANESE SHIP OFFICERS STILL BANDIT CAPTIVES

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, Nov. 8.—The Szechuenese troops who captured the Japanese captain and first officer during the raid on the Iyang Maru carrying northern ammunitions have now carried their prisoners from Foochow back to Chungking, now the headquarters of Szechuenese. The captors have not shown any willingness to negotiate with any party for the release of the two Japanese now in their hands. The special delegate from the Peking Ministry of Foreign Affairs has been flatly repulsed when applying for negotiations.

Of the five Japanese officers of the Iyang Maru, two others were thrown overboard by the Szechuen troops when they discovered that the Japanese steamer was carrying ammunitions for their enemies. They were the first engineer and second officer of the steamer. A memorial service was held in Hankow recently in mourning of their death. The fifth one escaped, and is reported unharmed.

RESTORE ORDER AT CHANGSHA AS TAN IS BEATEN

German Missionary Still Held By Bandits Under $10,000 Ransom

(Independent News Service)

Changsha, Nov. 8.—The situation here has much improved and Changsha is once more quite. Steamers are plying between Changsha and Hankow and traffic up river from Changsha is normal since two days. Tan's soldiers were badly defeated and the Southerners have been driven to where they came from, and it is hoped, all is over. Foreigners living on the island are now removing the sand bags as no further trouble is expected. This morning over fifty junks with ore arrived from the Hongchow mines, and business seems to get back to normal. Only a few soldiers are quartered outside.

The German missionary, Mr. F. Strauss, of the Lieberzeller mission, who was carried off by bandits near Wukang a fortnight ago, is still kept for $15,000 ransom. The German Consul at Changsha is much worried and has asked for voluntary subscriptions to the above amount to get the missionary released. German residents, to whom the list was sent refused to contribute, however, refusing on the ground that it would only encourage the bandits and moreover it is the business of the Chinese authorities to settle the matter.

Obituary

MISS BARGESON

The sad death occurred at Kuling on Monday when Miss Hilma Bargeson one of the senior missionaries of the Swedish Missionary Society was called to rest after having suffered for some nine years from cancer, for which she had undergone a few operations, says the Central China Post. The death took place at the Kuling General Hospital where she had been staying for some time. Miss Bargeson came to China in the early spring of 1893 and spent her first period at Wuchang. When she returned from furlough she was stationed at Hwangchowfu and there she started her life work by founding the Middle School for Girls. Later she also opened a teachers training school with lower and higher primary schools for girls, the most of the funds for this enterprise being collected by Miss Bargeson while at home on holiday. She was an arduous worker, full of energy and she gave her love for China especially for the Chinese girls.

The remains were laid to rest at the Kuling Cemetery on the 8th inst. A memorial service was first held in English in the Medical Hall, the speakers being the Rev. S. M. Freden who conducted the Funeral service and the Rev. E. C. Cooper. The occasion was most solemn and was attended by friends of deceased, who is mourned by Chinese besides her colleagues and members of other missions. Her death is a great loss to the schools at Hwangchow where she has been the President and her memory will live in the work she has so ably carried on. Miss Bargesen was born in Sweden 1863 and was a little over 60 years at her death.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

November 13, 1923

Spot bar silver was up ½d. and forward ⅛d. in London yesterday. The New York price advanced to 64¼ cents and the London-New York cross rate declined to 437½.

Our official Sterling rate here today was raised to 3s. 2d. the Gold Dollar rate to 69¼, the Yen rate dropped to 70 and the other rates changed accordingly.

Our market in the early part of the morning was firm, business in Sterling at one time being done as high as 3s. 3⅛d. December and 3s. 3d. January. Gold Dollars were done as high as 71½ for near delivery and 71¼ for forward.

However, there was a strong demand at these rates and the market eased off until at the close when there were no sellers of Sterling at better than 3s. 3d. November delivery, 3s. 2¾d. December and 3s. 2½d. January.

There were sellers of Gold Dollars at 71 November, 70¾ December and 70½ for January. There were sellers of Yen at 68¼ for November delivery and 68⅝ for December.

Banks were quoting 3s. 3⅜d. for Sterling bills for near delivery and 3s. 3½d. for forward. They were quoting 72¾ for Gold Dollar bills and 1310 for Franc bills.

India and China both bought silver in London yesterday and the market is reported as steady. New York report their market as firm.

Six Foreign Vessels Held Up By Army Bridge

Peking, Nov. 10.—The pontoon bridge which the northern General Yang Tsan threw across the Yangtze six li above Wanhsien in Szechuan, has been taken down, but during its existence it caused considerable worry to foreign shipping. It now appears that General Yang used the bridge to facilitate his retreat from the Szechuan army.

Six foreign steamers on their way up the River to Chungking were held because the military would not open the bridge. There they remained some of them from six hours to two whole days. Fortunately a Japanese gunboat happened along and its demand to be allowed to pass was granted. When the pontoon was drawn aside for that purpose, all the other six steamers dashed through too. The Alice Dollar was among those held.

The Washington Conference

TWO criticisms which have been made of the Washington Conference are that it erred by giving China too much and that it failed to take into consideration the real conditions existing in China. The criticisms have appeared in the foreign press in China and also have been reflected in resolutions passed by at least two of the most important foreign chambers of commerce maintained in China by foreign merchants. Chinese public opinion in regard to the Washington Conference has undergone an interesting change. Both during and immediately following the Conference Chinese opinion was critical of the actions of the meeting, but recently Chinese opinion, or at least that part of it which reaches the foreign press has changed to support of the conference actions in respect to this country. Japanese opinion, as reflected in the press of Japan has also undergone pretty much the same change in tone, that is, it has veered from criticism and opposition to the fullest possible support at the present time.

Whether the Washington Conference erred on the side of giving China too much is largely a matter of opinion and can only be settled by time and the course of events. Of the various things accomplished by the Conference in respect to China, only four have actually been carried into effect, the removal of surplus foreign troops, the removal of foreign postal agencies, the return of Shantung province to the jurisdiction of China and the adjustment of the tariff to an effective five percent. The sending of an international committee of jurists to China to investigate the question of extraterritoriality which was authorised by the Conference has now been twice postponed, once at the request of China and once at the request of America and the other powers. The fixing of a definite date for the visit of this commission is now understood to be under consideration. The Special Conference authorised for the further increase of the tariff through the levying of a general surtax of 2½ percent with a 5 percent on luxuries and a consideration of the important question of abolishing likin can not be held until France has ratified the Washington Conference treaties.

Of the four things which actually have been accomplished, there can be little division of opinion as to the advisability of three of them, the removal of the foreign postal agencies, the return of Shantung and the raising of the tariff. As to the advisability of the removal of the foreign troops, before China herself had carried out her promise to reduce her own surplus troops, there may be just grounds for division of opinion. Banditry and outlawry caused largely by China's uncontrolled soldiery which has become very pronounced since the close of the Conference, has doubtless caused the foreign offices of all of the foreign powers to question the wisdom of their action at this time in reducing the foreign military forces in China. At least the present tendency on the part of America, Great Britain, France and Japan in recommending a strengthening of their Yangtsze patrol forces would indicate that the foreign powers are skeptical of China's present ability to maintain order for the protection of foreign lives and property within the boundaries of the Chinese Republic.

As stated in our discussion of the Washington Conference in these columns yesterday, the responsibility for the present deplorable situation existing in China today, rests almost entirely with China. The responsibility for the radical change in public opinion in both America and Great Britain in respect to China, also rests with China. China lost her golden opportunity when she failed to rise to the opportunity for unification and accomplishment in partnership with the leading Powers which the Conference presented to her. Instead of bending every effort toward the all important matter of unification that would have enabled her to take full advantage of the opportunities presented by Washington, the two principal military factions of the North immediately engaged in a civil war almost before the ink on the treaties was dry. Then a little later Dr. Sun Yat-sen, who had done everything in his power through a strong propaganda in America to disrupt the Conference, again renewed his fight against Peking from his base at Canton. And to add to the rumors and futile civil wars there has been the problem of banditry directed against foreigners and the firing upon peaceful foreign cargo ships on the Upper Yangtsze and still further in addition the break down of morality at Peking as indicated in the absolute disregard of foreign loan and other obligations.

One of our correspondents in the United States who knows China recently wrote, "I never have known the face and prestige and credit of China to be so low in the United States as it is now and nobody takes any interest. Why should we bother about a people who will not or can not do anything for themselves? This represents the general view of the American people." The result of this general lack of interest in America which is a direct outcome of China's actions since the Washington Conference has caused the United States to adopt a drifting policy toward China and since all of the powers which participated in the Washington Conference naturally look to America to take the lead in regard to further action, the result is that they are all drifting. All of the actions of the Washington Conference are predicated on Chinese consent and participation owing to the fact that China was invited to participate in the Conference on an equal basis with the other Powers. The rapid decadence of Peking as the central governmental authority in China since the Washington Conference has prevented the Conference Powers from using Peking as a neucleus upon which to build. Now there is no constructive group in Chinese politics anywhere that holds out sufficient promise of strength that would merit foreign recognition and active support. In consequence of this, the foreign powers have got to devise some method of carrying on that will provide a reasonable degree of security for foreign business and property until China does recover to the point where she can be helped. The foreigners can only hold certain "key" points steady such as the foreign settlements and such branches of the Chinese Government in which they have influence and leave time and the Chinese to do the rest. If conditions continue to deteriorate, then another step might be necessary such as the calling of another Conference of the Nine Powers with the possible addition of Russia and Germany to consider the new situation presented by the absolute break down of China.

Shanghai's Gambling Places

ATTENTION has been drawn in the local press to the recrudescence of professional gambling in Shanghai, and it would appear about time that some attention was given to the activities of certain gentry who find profit and employment either in manipulating a wheel for roulette, or introducing the Russian variation of card lotto. For the most part, the four "gambling joints" of which we know are conducted as quietly as possible, to give no offence, it is to be presumed, to the neighbors, though it is hardly to be expected that the authorities are wholly in ignorance of their existence.

Some years ago when the "Wheel" was flourishing a determined effort was made to close it and it was not until after a considerable amount of energy was expended, and as the result of a persistent campaign, that the Chinese officials were induced to exercise their authority and close an institution which was a serious menace to the social life of Shanghai. On the other hand there is reason to believe that the establishment was well run, that those responsible for it were giving a good, clean gambling game and to that extent are to be freed from blame. But undoubtedly the number of young men who got into trouble as a result of frequenting the place was as strong an argument in favor of closing it as the recklessness of the same persons which contributed so much towards the Council's "blue law" with regard to the cabarets.

Now, however, there is not one "Wheel" in operation but five all with the exception of one in the French Concession, operating in and around that district formerly known by the euphonius term "The Trenches." One, even, is away out in Chinese territory well over the railway line and affording an easy guide to night visitors by the display of a green light. If the Chinese authorities are ignorant of the others they can hardly confess to be in the same state regarding an establishment which uses one solitary green light, high up on the building, to indicate its whereabouts. Nor can we believe that they do not know of the gambling in and around the Trenches, for we venture to assert that it is more difficult to conduct such institutions in Shanghai than probably anywhere else in the world where the law forbids it.

Before embarking on any argument as to whether or not these places should be closed, we have to consider one aspect of the question which is often lost to sight. In a cosmopolitan community such as Shanghai, consisting of peoples whose laws allow gambling and others whose laws do not, the point arises as to which standard of morality should be applied. Should we enforce that legislation common to Anglo-Saxon nations which would strictly forbid it, or should we adopt a more lenient view and allow those people, who would be doing no wrong in their own countries by gambling, to indulge in the same pastime here? Strictly speaking we have no right to inflict upon any race here, any other standard of morality than that established in their native lands. But we are then faced with the problem that to allow those who gamble in their countries of origin to do the same here would provide facilities to those who, at home would not be allowed to do so. It would be a hardship to say that because we have gone dry other nationals in Shanghai should do the same, almost as unjust as it would be for a Latin race in the majority in the foreign Settlement to say" Because we grow and drink excellent wine, it will be an offence if you don't partake of the same daily." We cannot force others to toe the line which we have drawn and we have no right to do so.

It is clear, on the other hand, that the existence of these houses of chance constitutes a direct menace to our social fabric. That inherent human desire to get something for nothing is strongest in the young and to that extent a roulette wheel is apt to afford them a greater inducement, though elder men are almost as easy victims. The latter, however, have themselves to blame if they go wrong our duty is more to the younger generation.

If in spite of the points we have adumbrated above it is really necessary to shut these places down, it should be done immediately. The existence of five such gambling places in this city is no compliment to the authorities responsible and the sooner they are closed the better—if they haveto be. If they have not to be wiped out, steps should be immediately taken to establish some sort of control over them. We do not suggest they should be licensed, for we are averse to any such recognition of the existence of such social evils, but we do urge upon the authorities that if these places are to be allowed to continue, they should be subjected to the sternest supervision and that one of the chief points insisted on should be the forbidding of the extension of credit to customers unlucky enough to have lost their first capital. Indeed, there is reason to believe that if such institutions were run on purely cash lines, they would soon be out of business, for very few men plan many hours ahead to go out and spend the night gambling, and still fewer carry enough money in their pockets to make a spontaneous decision to indulge in the same amusement, capable of being carried into effect.

The real solution, however, is to follow the precedents set in other instances and close the places. We know of at least two which the Municipal Council could as effectively close as they did one in the western district some years ago.

Editorial Comments

THE example set by the Hongkong authorities in imposing very severe penalties on ship passengers found in possession of firearms is going to be followed by the Straits Government. It is suggested that the best method of coping with the wave of crime sweeping over the Straits Settlement at present is to exercise greater supervision over passengers going to Singapore and Penang for it is felt that a considerable amount of arms is being smuggled into those parts by travellers.

The efforts of the Hongkong Government to stop this nefarious traffic already have been attended with success, the heavy fines and sentences imposed recently having a salutary effect on those who have been engaged in this undertaking. The Government of the Straits Settlements has been watching with keen interest the working of the regulations in Hongkong, and intends adopting at an early date identical measures. Among the measures to deal with the crime situation in Singapore now being considered by the Straits Government are the adoption of the heavy penalties introduced in Hongkong and the tightening of the Passenger Restriction Ordinance. It is forecasted that a bill to deal with the alien immigration question will shortly figure on the agenda of the Legislative Council at Singapore and it will be interesting to see how the Straits authorities grapple with this thorny question.

Residents of Singapore appear to be nervous over the spread of crime there, but the condition in this respect is not as bad as that faced by Shanghai and Hongkong. The prevention of crime problem is being tackled by almost all governments in the East, and the nervousness displayed by the Singapore people will appear to Shanghai people a bit exaggerated.

However, the rigorous application of regulations governing the admission of aliens into the Straits Settlements and the introduction of severer penalties for criminals after they have succeeded in getting into the country should bear good fruit. The imposition of additional harassing formalities upon helpless and harmless travellers to and from the Straits may impose hardships upon the travelling public, and the authorities should see that not too much tape is introduced into the business. Shanghai's problem is far more complicated, and therefore calls for more earnest study by the authorities.

Stimulating Discourses

WITH EXCERPTS FROM GREAT THINKERS

By Mathy

SELF-ENCOURAGEMENT
SELF-SUGGESTION

IN proportion as you increase your confidence in yourself by the affirmation of what you wish to be, your ability will increase.

He only is beaten who admits it.

Hold the thought of superiority and you will become superior.

Many people of real ability do little things all their lives because they are the victims of discouraging self-suggestions. Whenever they attempt to do anything, they allow their minds to dwell on the possibility of failure, and they picture the consequent humiliation of it all until they cripple their powers of initiative.

One of the worst things that can ever happen to a person is to get it into his head that he was born unlucky and that the Fates are against him. There are no Fates, outside of our own mentality. We are our own Fates. We control our own destiny.

In every town where people are complaining that their environment is against them and that there are no opportunities, others under the same conditions manage to succeed and make themselves felt in the world.

What can you do for a man who thinks he was born for failure? It is as impossible for success to come from the failure thought as for roses to come from thistle seeds. When one is greatly worried about failure or poverty, when he thinks much about it, he impresses his sub-consciousness with the very idea of failure, and develops unfavorable conditions. In other words, his thought, his mental attitude, is making impossible the very thing he is trying to accomplish.

We attribute much to luck or a cruel fate which belongs to our thought. We see people right alongside of us apparently with no greater ability wonderfully prosperous, while we are very indifferently so or perhaps total failures, and we are apt to think that there is a mysterious destiny which helps them, and that there is something outside of ourselves which keeps us back. But the probabilities are that the fault is in our thought, in our attitude of mind.

The trouble with us is that we do not half know how to jack ourselves up, so to speak. We are not severe enough with ourselves; not exacting enough: do not demand enough of ourselves. We should see ourselves in a much grander light: should think of ourselves as superb beings with infinite, divine possibilities. Don't be afraid of thinking too highly of yourself, for if the Creator made you, you must have inherited divine omnipotent possibilities you must partake of His qualities.

There is a powerful magic, a real creative force, in trying to become that which you wish to be, in assuming the character you would be like assuming the qualities you would attain.

You want health. Never allow youself to think that anything else will come to you. Assume the health attitude, think health, talk it. Say to yourself that it is your birthright.

The same is true in regard to prosperity. Do not allow yourself to think that anything else can come to you but prosperity. Assume the prosperity attitude, thought, manner. Act like a prosperous, progressive man, dress like one, think like one. Be sure that your mental picture, your mental attitude, is the pattern of that which you would like to be a reality.

If you wish to be brave, courageous, hold persistently the fearless thought, the thought that you are afraid of nothing, that nothing can make you a coward.

If you are timid, if you suffer from the shyness, just affirm that you will never again be afraid of anybody or anything, that you are going to hold your head up: assert your manhood or womanhood. Resolve that you will strengthen this weak link in your character.

Assuming an indifferent air often helps diffident, shy people. Just say to yourself:—"Other people are too busy to bother about me or to look at me and watch me, and, even if they do, it makes no difference to me. I am going to live in my own way."

If one is inclined to be retiring, shrinking, shy, the constant affirmation of the "I am" philosophy, the continual assertion, "I am a man made to do things, and I am going to do them"—a little daily practise in cultivating courage and self-confidence, aggressiveness in pushing oneself into responsibility will do wonders in building up, from a timid one, a bold, strong character.

If your parents and teachers tell you that you are dull and stupid, just deny it vigorously every time the suggestion comes to you. Constantly affirm that you are not stupid that you have ability and that you are going to show the people who have disapproved of you that you can do what others do.

You will find that just in proportion as you increase your confidence in yourself by the affirmation of what you wish to be, your ability will increase.

No matter what other people may think about your ability never allow yourself to doubt that you can do or become what you long to do or become. Increase your self-confidence in every possible way, and you can do this to a remarkable degree by the power of self-suggestion.

There is a great asset, a splendid capital, in the personal suggestion. Always try to carry yourself in such a way and conduct yourself in such a manner as to suggest success, growth, improvement, superiority. The very reputation of growing, of being vigorously progressive, of being a man who does things, a man who carries weight and who stands for something in his community, is worth everything.

Adding A Chapter To History

BY FRANK H. HEDGES

Portraits in oil of American secretaries of state who have gone before looked down from the walls of the long, narrow room with its black walnut chairs and tables and leather upholstered furniture. Golden yellow light from glass chandeliers struck the polished surface of the wood and of the three marble mantelpieces. Outside, the world was gray with falling rain, glimpsed through the tall, half-opened windows. A little group of newspaper writers, of those to whom virtually no doors are closed in these days of democracy, stood in one end of the Chamber of State. A row of cameras formed a barrier from wall to wall in the center of the room. This was the setting and the audience one noon not long ago for the final act of statesmen and diplomatists in the conclusion of the Four-Power Pacific Pact and the Naval Limitation Treaty.

The Second Assistant Secretary of State, for fifty years in the service of his Government, walked slowly down the length of the room and took a chair at the far end. One or two other officials of the State Department ranged themselves near him. The door opened and Charles Evans Hughes entered, accompanied by the representatives of the other signatory powers.

Mr. Hughes seated himself at the head of the table. On his right sat the British and French charges d'affaires; on his left the representative of Italy and the Japanese Ambassador. In a few brief sentences the American statesman explained the purpose of the gathering. Raising a document with his right hand, he remarked that it was the ratification of the treaties by the United States, and laid it to one side. "The British Empire!" he said, and Mr. Chilton passed Great Britain's ratification to Mr. Hughes, who laid it atop that of America. "France! — Italy! — Japan!" Each in turn presented the signed and sealed documents. It was very simple. Only the handful of workers who would give the news to the world looked on.

And then the representatives of the five great powers signed acknowledgement that the ratifications had been deposited in Washington in accordance with the decision of the conference that had closed 18 months before. The actual work of the conference ended here, but it merely marked the beginning of the change that is to come in the world because of that work, for the Acting Secretary of the Navy at once notified the builders of battleships of the curtailment in plans.

The five men rose to go, but bowed to the demand of the public and settled back into their chairs at the call of the photographers. For a few minutes the statesmen and diplomatists obeyed as little children, when the camera men asked the Japanese Ambassador to move his chair to the right or the British Charge to draw closer to the table. The glare of a brilliant light, a puff of smoke and the click of camera shutters; the same repeated; all was over. Portraits in oil of former American secretaries of state looked down from the walls on the new empty room where the scratch of pens had but recently added one more chapter to the history of the Nation which they in their day had helped to write.

XMAS FOR RUSSIANS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir.—With Christmas close at hand, and the bitterly cold days which prevail every year at that time rapidly approaching, we are much perturbed on behalf of the poor and needy whom we are seeking to help because of our inability to provide them with clothing.

It is perhaps needless to attempt to describe the deplorable plight of many of the refugees who are fellow-sojourners with us in Shanghai today. Yet what is to be seen on our streets by all who look about them with sympathetic eyes but very inadequately reflects the miserable conditions in which many of these destitute men, women and children live, crowded into little Chinese houses hidden away in the insanitary filthy alleyways of Hongkew, Chapei, and other sections of Shanghai, ill-fed and possessing neither blankets, bedding, fuel, or suitable clothes with which to protect themselves from the severity of winter when the really rigorous days arrive.

The Refugee Relief Advisory Committee has no money on hand for the purchase of clothing, and only sufficient left in its Soup Kitchen Fund to provide the 600-700 refugees it feeds with one meal of soup and bread per day for a few months longer. The Russian Benevolent Society likewise has come almost to the end of its resources and knows not which way to turn to meet the demands of the hundreds of helpless people who continually appeal to it for medicine and hospital accommodation.

Therefore, Sir, we turn to you—and through you to the benevolent public of Shanghai—with an earnest appeal for further help. We know that Shanghai charity has already been drawn upon almost to the uttermost, and that to meet the urgent needs of sufferers from the Japan earthquake disaster many wardrobes were only recently depleted of all that could be spared.

Nevertheless, we feel confident that our call for aid will not be totally in vain, especially when it is made known through the hospitality of your columns that anything whatever that can be given—the oldest garments, boots, shoes, hats, caps, suits, overcoats, macintoshes, underwear, stockings, socks, knitting wool, also odd pieces of material that can be made up into articles of wear for men, women or children—will be most gratefully received and carefully utilised.

All such gifts, however small—or large, may be addressed: "For Refugee Relief," c-o The King's Daughters' Society, 5a North Soochow Road.

Thanking you, Sir, for publishing this letter, and your readers in anticipation for their kindly help,

We are,
Yours faithfully,
THE RUFUGEE RELIEF ADVISORY COMMITTEE
B. W. WOLFE
Chairman.

The Rustle Of Silk

America's largest single item of import is silk. The yearly value of this commodity runs into the billions. The economic evolution of Americans can be recorded in terms of silk says the San Francisco Journal.

Begin with the silk stocking. Here enters the patrician among the colonists. Here begins that careful separation of blue blood from ordinary blood. The young country learned to recognise its first aristocrats by their silken hose. What a comfort it was to know one's place, and be known. Silk, blessed silk!

Then came the silk hat. The distinguishing mark passed from extreme to extreme. The sacred fabric passed from the halls of the upper ten and down into the marts of trade and the stamping ground of the vulgar professions. The silk hat became symbolic of business men, bankers, politicians and grafters. The cartoonists seized upon it as the sign of predatory wealth. Small boys jerred at it and down-trodden workmen cursed it.

And as the silken hose of aristocracy has come to grace the humble dog, so the once proud silk topper lives only to flourish among ancient cabbies and careless undertakers.

Then—oh precious moment—came the silk shirt. And swiftly following, the silk suit or dress and the silk undies. The proletariat dabbling timidly in near-silk stockings, blossoms out boldly in the all-silk shirt. Silk is a symbol of the age in which we live. It speaks of the grandeur, the leisure, the maddening wealth of the present epoch that taunts us to be spent in obvious ways.

At last the destiny of the humble silk worm is manifest. Silk is made safe for democracy.

Truth Article

Remember that one cannot deplete the supply of pure air in the world by breathing all he needs of it. No one suffers lack of air when you fill your lungs. Millions of people have been breathing the air for thousands of years, yet it is as pure and sweet as it was in the beginning. The only air that can be made impure is that which is confined. Shut yourself in a tight room and the air will soon become bad. Even this, when it is set free, becomes pure again.

Remember that life, substance, wisdom and love are like the air; their supply is unlimited. They are attributes of God, and God is everywhere present.

Man has formed habit of limiting his ideas of life by believing that life is short; full of weakness and sickness. This conception of life has shut him away, to a certain extent, from the great Universal Life, which is eternal, which fills all who receive it with strength and health. Let us open the windows of our minds to God's abundant life, letting it fill us with health, vitality, energy and youth.

Man is also in the habit of limiting his wisdom to what is contained in books, forgetting that "there is a spirit in man: and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding." All wisdom is in Divine Mind, and man may draw upon it as he draws upon the air. When he limits his idea of wisdom, he shuts himself away from divine inspiration.

Man believes that love is limited—that love can be destroyed. There is really no cessation of love excepting in man's limited idea of love. There is fear only as man doubts God's love. Man also believes in lack of substance. God has provided abundantly for his children's needs, and the only lack is brought on by man's limited idea of supply. Man believes that supply comes from matter, thus limiting supply in his affairs.

All the life, love, wisdom and substance of the universe are now at man's disposal. They are as free as the air.

When God's free, abundant life is shut out by thoughts of sickness and old age, the life in the man runs at a low ebb. The inflow of new life will come when he consciously feels that his life is God's life and the same. Let us affirm that God is his abundant, pure, vitalising life. In the same way he can draw upon Universal substance, wisdom and love.

Remember that it is necessary to let go of old error ideas if one would be healed of chronic disease.

That cherished grudge which you have nursed along for years because some one has done you an injustice must go. It is gnawing at the foundation of your health.

That old fear that you are clinging to, that you must succumb to a certain disease because your ancestors died of it, must go. That old snobbish family pride that makes you look down upon certain people must go. That old idea that you are a worm of the dust must go. That belief in the reality of sickness must go. That old desire to criticise must go. In their place must be put forgiveness, love, an understanding of your spiritual life and a realisation of spiritual life and power. This can only be done through a willingness to let go of the ideas that are holding you back.

In the Open Desert

Major Blake, describing some of his adventures on the great attempted Round-the-World Air Flight, writes:—
"On several occasions when we were stranded in the desert with little or no food, Bovril was most valuable.
"I recollect one of the bitterly cold nights in the open desert when our escort machine and ourselves had to land miles away from anywhere. We sat huddled up under the machine unable to sleep through cold, until we drained some petrol out of one of the tanks and heated some of our small supply of water. Then we opened up a Bovril tin, enabling us to thoroughly warm ourselves and get a little sleep.
"I cannot overestimate the value of this food to us . . . I should be extremely loath to undertake a trip of this nature without this food."

Mukden "Crown Prince" Favors War With Chihli

Tientsin, Nov. 9.—A visitor from Mukden brings with him the information that Marshal Chang Tso-lin has in his contemplation shortly to convene a Conference of High Officers and Officials in Manchuria with a view to discussing measures vis-a-vis the Chihli Clique, the Canton Government and the Provincial Autonomy question, although it is doubtful whether he will express his definite attitude regarding these questions.

General Chang Hsueh-liang, son of Marshal Chang Tso-lin, recently has been standing prominently as a war advocate. He has assumed the command of the military aerial corps, and started night practice of the machines.

FENGTIEN DIVIDED

Peking, Nov. 9.—While neither side taken the step of publishing what is happening, the Chihli and Fengtien party leaders continue to confer and make attempts at establishing an understanding of peace. President Tsao Kun sent two delegates, Messrs. Chin Ting-hsun and Ting Chin-tao, with a personal message to Mukden on the fourth instant, and these men have already been granted an interview by General Chang Tso-lin.

These delegates report that the feeling toward the Peking Government among General Chang's followers seems to be divided. One camp, the more radical favor a strictly hands off policy, while the more moderate want a neutral stand, with a policy of protecting the Three Eastern Provinces.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 10.—The Cabinet has received a telegram from Civil Governor Lu Tiao-yuan saying, in connection with the educational upheaval there, that he had exchanged telegrams with the Military Governor on the subject as the result of which they had decided to send a joint telegram to the Central Government asking that the Anhui Educational Commissioner be dismissed and punished. In restoring order the troops had been greatly assisted by the police who co-operated very satisfactorily. Yesterday some of the leading trouble-makers were arrested. Others escaped for the time being but had since been apprehended by the police Now all is peaceful in Anhui. The telegram concluded with a request that the foregoing should be communicated to President Tsao Kun.
